

FITZEMEYER & TOCCI
ASSOCIATES, INC.

Dear Ms. Architect,

They say a camel is a horse designed by committee.

Well, you and I both know that's just the beginning. Because if the team members executing your design don't communicate with each other, they'll end up building an elephant.

And that pretty much sums up the dynamics of some building projects.

I can't protect you from clients who insist on making their mark on your designs, but I can help you be sure that your designs are executed properly.

Fitzemeyer & Tocci is a Mechanical/Engineering firm with expertise in HVAC, plumbing, fire protection, and electrical. Because we specialize in building projects for education, health care, municipal government, and a wide range of businesses, we have the knowledge and experience to anticipate the specific needs of each particular industry.

We have a long-standing reputation for excellence in building services design, combining advanced technology with proven techniques to help our clients meet their project objectives.

Equally important, Fitzemeyer & Tocci is known for providing an unsurpassed level of service:

You're assured that you'll always be working with people who are informed and ready to hit the ground running. When we take on a building project, the same team members see the project through from beginning to end.

Fitzemeyer & Tocci's proactive approach to project management keeps your project on track, on time, and on budget. We're continually coordinating and communicating with other affected trades, so we can identify issues quickly and address them efficiently.

We provide timely responses to your questions and requests. We are always available to you and ready to do what it takes to complete a project to your satisfaction.

You'll know early on what to expect. We study the short and long view of a project, so we can predict what adjustments may have to be made while there's plenty of time to find the best solution.

When you work with Fitzemeyer & Tocci, the only surprise you'll encounter is by how much we will exceed your expectations. Everyone who works here is a talented professional. Diligence and commitment are second nature to all of us.

Quite simply, our focus is on you.

I'd welcome the opportunity to personally answer any of your questions about Fitzemeyer & Tocci. Of course, we would be happy to prepare a no-obligation, no-cost estimate for your next project.

Rest assured, if you design a horse, we'll build you a thoroughbred.

Sincerely,

Ted Fitzemeyer
